

We would like to invite you to this very attractive symposium on high-quality scientific publications in gerontology and geriatrics because we invited the key editors and publishers in this field. As you may know, the field of gerontology and geriatrics has experienced a significant increase in the number and impact of academic journals dedicated to the study of aging and related topics. This trend has been accompanied by a growing focus on the quality of research, with an emphasis on larger and more diverse study samples, rigorous study designs, and increased international collaboration. The publication of high-quality research in gerontology and geriatrics has also led to important advancements in our understanding of the aging process and how to promote healthy aging. Topics of interest have expanded to include emerging areas such as frailty, sarcopenia, and social determinants of health, as well as innovative approaches to the prevention, diagnosis, and treatment of age-related conditions. Now let's listen to what the editors of Archives of Gerontology and Geriatrics, Geriatrics and Gerontology International, and European Geriatric Medicine, and Elsevier talk in this session and get a hint to publish your paper to high-impact journals.
